OBJECTIVES

The conference will provide an opportunity to increase knowledge and awareness of the physical and mental health needs of Arab and Muslim populations. Also, it will provide an opportunity for networking, consultation and information dissemination of the importance of building and sustaining collaborative efforts toward the respect of cultural differences among the vast majority and Arab and Muslim people.

Most or all sessions will be video-recorded. These will be accessible on line by all MSU medical colleges and collaborating faculty after the conference so information can be integrated into programs dealing with education about the Arab and Muslim world.

Students, faculty and providers from communities across Michigan, especially those with the highest percentage of Arab and Muslim populations, are invited to participate.
